

Workshop Announcement

Bioenergy Crops in Central Illinois

March 8, 2013
8:00 am to 12:30 pm
First Baptist Church of Fairbury
701 N 7th St.
Fairbury IL

This workshop will discuss the opportunities and technical aspects of growing bioenergy crops as a conservation practice with a revenue potential, using land that is less productive when used for corn or soybean. Experts and producers will talk about their experience in growing energy crops, their agronomy, suitability to grow in adverse soil conditions, economics, yields, potential markets and water quality benefits.

Refreshments will be served

Questions: Cristina Negri negri@anl.gov or 630 252-9662
Download the agenda \(add website link\)

The Organizers would like to thank Terry Bachtold of the Soil and Water Conservation District of Livingston County for his help in promoting this workshop